LinkedIn Bio: ELEVATE LEADERS. GROW BUSINESS. FIND HAPPINESS.

I'm grateful to be one of the most in-demand Executive Coaches for Entrepreneurs in the U.S. My clients are some of the most successful lifelong learners and seekers of continuous personal and business growth. They are members of YPO, Vistage, CEO Roundtables, 40 Under 40 lists, Best Places to Work, and Best Run Family Businesses. They've earned this status through hard work, being open to new perspectives, and thinking differently.

I have never met a client who wanted to be ordinary. I believe that unusual success comes from unusual approaches and that is what sets me apart. I am known for asking the right questions to uncover problems, discover strengths, and leverage assets that are often so nuanced or taken for granted that clients don't recognize the impact or opportunity.

I'm unlike any other executive or leadership coach in my approach and my experience. I've built businesses from the ground up and taken a business from 2 employees to 2,200. I know what it's like to succeed – and stumble – and appreciate the lessons learned when business scales, flattens or shrinks. I draw from my gritty, real-world experience as an entrepreneur and coach to more than 85 businesses, large and small.

I wrote the must-have business book, "Just Ask Leadership: Why Great Managers Always Ask the Right Questions," because it is such an overlooked, practical simple way to lead others. I love to share insights as a keynote speaker about compelling topics like "Just Ask Leadership," "Success is Never a Solo Act," "The Guilty Pleasure of Executive Coaching," "The Secret to Effectively Coaching Employees," and "How to Make Your Assistant Invaluable."

My greatest joy is helping clients discover a "daring daylight escape" to an intractable challenge and find meaning and happiness in work and life. That and a sunny deep-powder day on Rolex at Steamboat.

Are your stories dated?

Recently, during a conversation with my wife, something remarkable happened. As we discussed the hikes we used to do together, memories from long ago resurfaced. However, it wasn't just nostalgia. It was a realization that we had the chance to refresh our stories and create new adventures.

Life has a unique way of delivering wake-up calls, and for me, it came in the form of getting stents. It reminded me that time is fleeting and the unpredictable nature of life demands our attention. It's in these moments that I feel a surge of excitement, fueled by the prospect of crafting fresh narratives and exploring uncharted territories.

So I challenge you to reflect on the stories you carry within you.

Are they ready for a refresh?

I recently had a powerful experience with a CEO struggling to restructure amid the pandemic. He was fixated on cost-cutting and missed new possibilities. When asked, "What's another way to do acquisitions given the current environment?" he lit up with a game-changing grin and an idea. This continues to demonstrate the importance of how asking different types of questions will unlock innovation and growth. Good leaders ask questions more often than they answer, but great leaders master different styles.

How are you going about finding new and different ways to ask questions to engage the people in your life?

Have you ever wondered why some leaders soar while others sputter and stall? As a leadership coach, I've noticed something truly remarkable about outstanding leaders—they go beyond the traditional approaches. They craft their own unique roadmap to success. They understand the power of collaboration and the importance of personalized leadership development based on three crucial inputs: team priorities, personal beliefs, and current organizational needs.

After years of research, we developed a new model called the Ascent Leadership™ Framework which provides precise, objective feedback across 6 key areas from Purpose to People to Execution. Instead of a simple 1-5 scale, it offers clearly defined levels from "lagging" to "mastery" for each leadership competency. Results have been transformational. It is the right instrument for any company that wants to accelerate performance. The moral of the story? There simply is no cookie-cutter models of "good leadership."
